»Bolj kot pohvalo otrok potrebuje objektivno povratno informacijo o svojem delu.«
Marko Juhant

PREDGOVOR

Človek v svojem življenju potrebuje nešteto povratnih informacij, da nahranijo njegov smisel za biti, početi in rasti. Še zlasti pa to velja za učenca v šoli. Brez ustreznega in nenehnega feedbacka učenec ne more vedeti, kako uspešen je in kako mu gre. Zato se pogosto zgodi, da učna motivacija upade in učenec se začne učiti kampanjsko – le za ocene.

VAJE ZA PREVERJANJE ZNANJA so nastale ravno z namenom, da se to ne bi zgodilo, saj učencu omogočajo, da preverja, utrjuje in nadgrajuje svoje znanje ter sistematično pridobiva objektivne povratne informacije o svojem napredku v jezikovnem znanju in spremnostih.

Povratna informacija pa je najbolj objektivna takrat, ko se da meriti. In VAJE ZA PREVERJANJE ZNANJA so sestavljene tako, da učencu in učitelju to omogočajo. Vsaka naloga v zbirki štirih snopičev namreč vsebuje natanko deset primerov (izjemoma 20), tako da učenec ali učitelj točke zlahka pretvorita v odstotke in le-te v oceno. Učenec tako lahko meri svoj napredok v poznavanju in rabi besedišča in jezikovnih struktur ter v spremnosti bralnega razumevanja in pisnega sporočanja ob posameznih enotah v učbeniku. Na koncu vsakega snopiča pa je še pregleden test, kjer učenec preveri znanje celotnega sklopa.

VAJE ZA PREVERJANJE ZNANJA k učbeniku Touchstone 8 imajo pregledno strukturo in so kot takšne nadaljevanje VAJ ZA PREVERJANJE ZNANJA k učbeniku Touchstone 7, le da so vaje številčnejše in nekoliko zahtevnejše. Rešitve nalog se nahajajo na CD-ju in so spet podane zelo pregledno, saj so identične prvotnim nalogam.

Kaj vse bo učenec našel v VAJAH ZA PREVERJANJE ZNANJA k učbeniku Touchstone 8?

SEZNAM ZNANJ (na platnicah)

Vsebuje jasno zastavljene učne cilje. Učenec izve, katera znanja in spremnosti se pričakujejo od njega pri vsaki enoti posebej.

SEZNAM BESEDIŠČA

Vsebuje vse novo besedišče za vsako enoto posebej. Besedišče je podano po berilih oziroma temah v učbeniku. Ob besedah je prostor, kamor učenec lahko zapiše slovenski pomen besed. Seznam znanj in besedišča je namenjen predvsem tistim pridnim učencem, ki so vedno zaskrbljeni, da niso morda česa spregledali, in učencem, ki so veliko odsotni.

SAMOUČENJE

Učenec pri samoučenju samostojno osvaja temeljno besedišče nekega sklopa, npr. nakupovanje, izumi, hišna opravila, počitnice, in dobi povratno informacijo o uspešnosti samostojnega učenja, hkrati pa se uči učiti se. Vsaka enota vsebuje eno poglavje SAMOUČENJE, razen 3. enote, ki vsebuje dve. Naloga je celourna, namenjena tudi za čas, ko je učitelj zaposlen z ustnim ocenjevanjem znanja.

PREVERJANJE BESEDIŠČA

Za vsako enoto je pripravljenih od 21 do 35 raznovrstnih nalog (dopolnjevanje, povezovanje, premetanke, sopomenke, protipomenke, križanke, mediacija itd.), ki se nanašajo na vsakokratno berilo ali teme pri posamezni enoti.

PREVERJANJE SLOVNICE

Za vsako enoto je pripravljenih od 15 do 20 raznovrstnih nalog, ki se nanašajo na jezikovne strukture pri vsaki enoti: glagolski časi, povratni osebni zaimki, naklonski glagoli, členki, vrstni red besed itd.

PREVERJANJE BRALNEGA RAZUMEVANJA

Vsebuje od 10 do 15 raznovrstnih nalog za vsako enoto, ki se navezujejo na teme v učbeniku: vprašanja mešanega tipa, povezovanje, vstavljanje, T/F/NT. Teksti so vzeti iz različnih virov, največ z interneta.

PREVERJANJE PISNEGA SPOROČANJA

Vsebuje približno 6 nalog za vsako enoto posebej. Predvsem so to pisni sestavki ob danih iztočnicah, ki se nanašajo na teme v učbeniku.

PREVERJANJE SKLOPA PRED PISNIM OCENJEVANJEM ZNANJA

Vsebuje od 4 do 6 raznovrstnih nalog za preverjanje rabe jezika, eno nalogo za bralno razumevanje in eno nalogo za pisno sporočanje. Na prvi strani so točkovnik, kriteriji in standardi znanja.

TABELE

K vsaki enoti je pripravljenih od 2 do 5 preglednih tabel z jezikovnimi strukturami, ki služijo kot pomoč pri reševanju jezikovnih nalog.

ZBIRNIKI DOSEŽKOV

Različni zbirniki za učenca in učitelja po enotah ali po temah pomagajo učencu in učitelju pri spremljanju učenčevega napredka.

Naj vam ta knjiga dobro služi!

—spend more time than— are normally close to which contains will ever take the place makes them feel positive offline experience started to appear online shopping is a holiday destination in itself is the end of opened in the USA

Shopping malls are the places where Americans spend more time than (0) anywhere else except at home or work. Small shops in city centres are disappearing because of shopping malls. This is the end of (1) small shops.

In supermarkets, fruit and vegetables are normally close to (2) the entrance. This makes people think they are going in an open-air market and makes them feel positive (3). But no shopping centre will ever take the place (4) of open-air markets. People like the sellers' cries: "Sweet juicy oranges!"

Some experts believe that in the future online shopping (5), i.e. shopping on the internet, will replace shopping malls. But most of people still prefer the real offline experience (6) to buying things from the comfort of their own home.

The first shopping mall or hypermarket opened in the USA (7) in the 50s of the 20th century. Twenty years later similar hypermarkets started to appear (8) in Europe. Today there are about 50,000 shopping malls in the USA, and about 10,000 in Europe.

The world's largest mall is West Edmonton Mall in Canada which contains (9) 800 stores, 100 restaurants and 26 cinemas. This entertainment and shopping centre is a holiday destination in itself (10) where you can shop till you drop.

SHOPPING HABITS

In our family, my mother does the weekly grocery (0) shopping. But when we run (1) out of something I have to go to the nearby shop, because my mum doesn't want to borrow (2) things from our neighbours.

When she goes shopping, she always makes a shopping list, so she never forgets anything. There are usually 10 to 12 items (3) on her shopping list. She prefers to do the shopping at a supermarket, and she rarely (4) goes to a corner shop near our house.

My mum says that buying in a supermarket has a lot of advantages (5). There's free choice made possible by self-service, prices are normally lower (6), it's easy to find a free parking lot, and the quality of goods (7) is usually high. There are also special offers (8) for different products. The only thing she doesn't like about supermarkets is the slow moving queues (9) at the checkout.

Sometimes, my mum and I go on a major shopping expedition which can last (10) the whole day. And that is when we go shopping for clothes.

as well as his workroom	-what shopping was like-	from open stalls	a pedlar's neck which were noisy	own sheep or goats	against the wall of in the street	over the counter	where things were sold	in one place

SHOPPING AND SHOPS IN THE MIDDLE AGES

Can you imagine what shopping was like (0) hundreds of years ago? Nowadays there are supermarkets and department stores where you can buy everything you need in one place (1). If you had lived long ago, you would have had to visit the market-place and buy from open stalls (2) and street traders, each selling something different. Today you pay with money. Then you might have paid with some of your own sheep or goats (3).

Nowadays we think of a shop as a special building in the high street or shopping centre. But in the Middle Ages a shop was any place where things were sold (4). It could be a tray round a pedlar's neck (5) or an open stall in the market-place. Some market stalls were covered booths, built in the street or against the wall of (6) a building. There were shops in cellars, under arches in a wall or in hired rooms in a tavern. Often the ground floor of a craftsman's house was his shop as well as his workroom (7), with window shutters which could be pushed outwards to form a counter. The shoppers stood outside in the street (8) to buy.

For centuries, the actual shop building was not very important. Most selling took place in the streets which were noisy (9) with traditional cries: "Cherry ripe!" – "Old chairs to mend!". Even craftsmen who worked at home sold more goods in the street than they did over the counter (10) of their shops.

ENGLISH COURSE IN CAMBRIDGE

Up in the morning at eight o'clock to the gentle sound of (0) English rain on the window; a large English breakfast cooked by a large English landlady; and a stroll through (1) the Cambridge streets to the lecture-hall. Two lectures an hour long each (2) on literature perhaps, or education, or English politics (3), or music; and in between them, half-an-hour over a cup of coffee or a glass of lager (4) in a nearby pub. Lunch in a Cambridge pub; and then a free afternoon. Free perhaps for sport or just looking around: Cambridge has a number of old churches and colleges, a fine museum, and is in the middle of very special (5) and attractive countryside. Free, perhaps, for an afternoon on the river; we always organize at least one trip by river to a neighbouring village (6); or free for working, reading, shopping or just talking.

In the evening we go out to dinner or the theatre or cinema. Cambridge is a small university town with a busy calendar of events, all of them easily accessible on foot (7) from the centre. Best of all is the Cambridge Festival, usually in the last two weeks of (8) July, when there is theatre and music every night.

Why is this course appropriate for older students? First because there is enough free time. We deliberately try not to crowd people's time with 'activities' of the kind (9) that always feel 'organized'; and unnatural. Second because it's not a very expensive course. Third because there are students of different backgrounds and ages (10); and that makes all the difference in the world.

Advertising is the business of trying to persuade people to buy their products (0) or services.

Advertisements and commercials (1) are present everywhere. You can hear them on the radio and you can see them on billboards, bus shelters (2), football stadiums, leaflets and fliers in your letter - box (3). They interrupt (4) TV programmes all the time.

All this advertising has a good and bad effect (5) on our lives. It gives people information about products which are on sale (6). It keeps prices down, because manufacturers who produce the same thing always try to sell their own product most cheaply. Newspapers and magazines which have a lot of advertisements are cheaper, because manufacturers pay high prices for advertising space (7).

A lot of people are influenced by advertising. It makes people buy things they don't really need. It makes people dissatisfied (8) with their lives, because they see all those 'perfect' people in advertisements and commercials. Advertising is not always honest. Advertisements often exaggerate (9) about the thing they are selling. They represent the products as better than is actually the case. A lot of advertisements are not decent (10) because of a large number of naked or near-naked men and women appearing in advertising spots.

SOUVENIRS

The best gifts to receive are those that also remind the receiver (0) of how special the person who gave them the gift is. It's not the money; it's the meaning (1).

Therefore the poet brings his poem (2); the shepherd, his lamb (3); the farmer, corn (4); the miner, a gem (5); the sailor, coral and shells (6); the painter, his picture (7); the girl, a handkerchief (8) of her own sewing.

But it is a cold, lifeless business (9) when you go to the shops to buy me something, which does not represent your life and talent, but a goldsmith's (10).

Prirejeno po www.quotesnack.com, Emerson's quotation on gifts.

scent	presence	from	around	describe	warm	nearly remind	of	starry	entry	remember	frequently	smell

Have you ever come across a particular scent (0) and thought about a certain person or place? This specific experience happens frequently (1) in my life. I smell cigar and peppermint and think of Christmas with my Boo Pa, sitting on the front porch and staring out at the starry (2) night sky that looked as if a thousand little ants with lights were crawling around (3) in a dark puddle. It is quite a fond memory to my sisters and I. Maybe even one of the only few I remember (4). One even fonder is that of my grandmother's old house – the smell (5) of moth balls and air freshener. As bizarre and different as that sounds, it is one of my favourite smells. It is crisp, yet homey and warm (6). At this point in my life, it is one of the only childhood memories I am able to recollect. The person that comes to mind when I smell this scent in my own life even now is my grandfather. He passed ten years ago. The smell is really the only memory I have left of (7) him; that and the pictures. Neither really does him justice. The man was great to me. He was an amazing human being who blessed everyone with his presence (8). I have heard stories of how he would sing in church on Sunday mornings and leave people with great memories. Even now when I go and visit Moody Leon, a small church with forty members and a kitchen behind the entry (9) doors of the small sanctuary, I am told how he blessed people. They each describe (10) their experience. Some say it was like a bird, and others say like a lullaby.

SHOPPING WITH MOM

0	It's a nightmare when she takes you to the fifth store that afternoon	5	A	where she got the idea strangers want to know all these things.
1	I think my mom dresses well for a woman her age, but I wouldn't let her	7	B	when I try to call her phone or text her to ask where she went, she doesn't answer. So I have to wander through the entire store to look for her.
2	I hate it when she runs back to get "one more thing" and you're left	0	C	and then she drags you out to go shopping again the very next day.
3	I love my mom's style but whenever she buys me clothes she ends up	8	D	the entire store, getting tired of walking and looking and then going home instead to relax.
4	My "shopping with Mom" experience is browsing the entire store and then going back	10	E	looks bad at first glance and if I were alone I would never look at it twice, but once I put it on, it fits like a glove. Mom knows best I guess.
5	My mom sometimes overshares information or tells her life story to cashiers. I don't know	2	F	stranded at the front of a checkout line with a row of people behind you.
6	I hate it when she wants you to try on something you absolutely would never	9	G	buying me stuff, even if she told me years ago that she wouldn't do it anymore.
7	My mom is always like "Go grab X and I'll be here in aisle Y". So I go, and when I come back, she's halfway across the store and	4	H	to find she is still looking at curtains in aisle 2 even though no one in the family needs curtains.
8	We're very similar and our idea of shopping is browsing	1	I	choose clothes for me, because she tends to forget that I'm over 30 years younger.
9	I actually love shopping with my mom, it's a good opportunity to spend time together, but she often ends up	6	J	pick out in a million years.
10	I used to hate shopping with my mom, because it was mostly just her trying on things and me waiting for the nightmare to end. Now we don't go shopping very often, but when we do, she often finds stuff that	3	K	getting them 2 sizes too large and then I have to either return them or stick them in the back of my closet until I forget about them.

8	Learning about a product	F
9	How to get the most out of smart shopping with the child	J
10	Learning by observing and imitating others	B

TEACHING KIDS TO BE SMART SHOPPERS

- A) Parents can help the child by talking about where they choose to shop, the way they make shopping decisions, and the products they choose to buy. As part of learning about smart shopping, parents can help the child make sensible shopping choices.
- B) The child learns about shopping by watching parents' shopping choices and behaviour. So one of the best ways to help the child learn how to shop responsibly is by parents being a role model for kids themselves.

- ⌚ It can be hard for young children to understand the value of money if they never see it. If parents take money out of a cash point, they should talk to the child about how it got there. Going shopping is a chance for parents to teach the child about banks, debts and saving money, as well as how credit cards or electronic purchases work.

D) Set a limit on how much you're going to spend: so the child learns that you get what you need with the money you have. These simple strategies can help the child learn important values and life skills, like how to live within a budget and how we can't always have everything we want. Make a list of what you're going to buy before you go shopping, and stick to it. This can help you avoid impulse buys that really add up.

E) Bargain with salesmen for a good price or deal on expensive items: often, all you have to do is ask for a better price. It's a good skill for children and grown-ups to have.

F) Check out the product online or ask a sales assistant before you commit to buying. Show your child that you need information before you buy something.

Pause before buying: is this the product that you want? Read the label, ask the salesperson to show you how the product works, and check what's inside the box.

Shop around to compare prices and value: whether you're shopping online or in a shopping centre, this can teach your child about different products, quality, guarantees, after-sales service and other added value items.

G) This helps your child learn about not being pressured into buying things by salespeople or special offers.

H) For example, you might pay more for a better quality or ethical clothing brand, a product with a longer warranty, or one that's environmentally friendly.

Talk about the difference between brand and generic items. Brand items often cost more, but you might sometimes prefer to buy them – you could explain why.

I) Explain how business firms are trying to attract buyers' attention and persuade them to buy their products, especially by paid announcements in newspapers, magazines, television, or electronic media.

J) When your child helps you with the shopping, your child gets a chance to learn smart shopping habits. You can make the most of this opportunity by shopping when your child isn't tired, hungry or overexcited and when the shops aren't too busy.

K) It also often helps to give your child a job to do. Here are some ideas what a child can do:

- Pick items off the shelf and put them in the basket.
- Read labels on products and make choices about brands.
- Look for signs in shops for sales and specials.
- Pack shopping into bags.
- Choose fruit and vegetables.
- Pay for items in cash. Older children can learn from taking and checking the change.

VICTORIAN SHOPS

The window displays in Victorian shops were changed every day. The assistants were up at dawn to sweep the shop, take down the shutters, clean the windows and set out the new display. After the invention of the gas light, shops could stay open after dark, so assistants often worked 15 hours a day, from 6 am to 9 or 10 pm.

Shop assistants often had to "live in". Board and lodging were part of their wages but they could not choose to live out. They lost their job if they married. The rules were strict, often with fines if they were late for meals, or used matches or forgot to call members of the firm "Sir". Shop assistants did not win the right to live out until 1920.

Today conditions are much better. Laws limit the hours a shop can open; the assistants have a right to have breaks, and seats must be provided for them.

THE HISTORY OF HARRODS

Harrods is London's most famous department store. The luxurious store is on many tourists' itineraries, who come to admire the magnificent interior and enormous selection. They often leave the store with a signature green bag; foreign visitors account for a significant part of the store's sales.

History

The history of this famous luxury store goes back to 1849 when Charles Henry Harrods opened a grocery at Brompton Road in Knightsbridge, at that time a small village just outside London. Just two years later, the Great Exhibition of 1851, which took place at Crystal Palace in nearby Hyde Park, brought many visitors to the area. Knightsbridge and Harrods' new store boomed.

Charles Harrods' son (also named Charles) took over and quickly expanded the store, at the time known as 'Harrods Stores'. The department store became well known for its high quality products and excellent personalized service.

In 1894 Harrods was taken over by Richard Burbridge who had the store completely rebuilt. He also installed London's first escalator, in 1898. The current building was also commissioned by Burbridge. The impressive domed structure was built between 1901 and 1905 after a design by local architects C. W. Stephens and E. J. Munt.

The Department Store

Harrods is one of the world's most famous stores and one of London's tourist attractions thanks to the wide assortment of luxury goods that are on display in a magnificently decorated building.

The enormous array of products is particularly impressive. The company's motto – engraved on the building's pediment – is Omnia, Omnibus, Ubique (Everything, for everyone, everywhere). Harrods used to be known as the store where anything you could think of was for sale. While this may not be the case anymore, the assortment is still enormous. You can purchase anything from historic eighteenth-century dinner plates or exquisite caviar to giant teddy bears.

Egyptian Decorations

It is best to take your time for a visit to the large store, which covers an area of about 80,000 sq. m spread out over seven floors. Floor plans are available near the entrances.

One of the most beautiful departments of the store is the magnificent Food Hall on the lower floor, decorated with tiles created by artist William James Neatby. Other impressive departments include the Egyptian Halls and the Crystal Rooms. Also of note is the central escalator, decorated with Egyptian motives. And don't forget to visit the toy department – the city's best – where you'll find enormous stuffed animals.

AN AGE OF ADVERTISING

We live in the age of advertising. In most countries the public is exposed to advertisements daily. From the minute they wake up people are influenced by publicity – in newspapers, on the train, on billboards on the way to work. When they relax after work they watch television, or perhaps go to a football match where there are advertisements, or a cricket or tennis match which is organized by a large company.

The housewife is perhaps the most influenced by advertising. While she is shopping she will be attracted by colourful packets, and by signs of reductions and free gifts.

Companies say that advertising is necessary to give the public information about their products and to create competition. But advertising, which is very expensive, does not only inform. Instead it persuades. A man is persuaded that if he buys 'Old Spice' aftershave lotion, he will immediately become attractive to all the pretty girls. In the same way a mother is persuaded that if she doesn't give her baby 'Happibaby' food, the baby will suffer.

Recently a new angle has been added to advertising – science. In our technological age science is fashionable and many companies try to make us buy their goods by telling us how important science is in their production.

People feel that scientists know best. They are looked upon as magicians who can perform tricks. For example, before colour television was introduced the white clothes which were being shown in washing powder advertisements were in fact bright yellow. Yellow looked brighter than white on black-and-white television. Let's hope that scientists will concentrate on improving the products they help to advertise, rather than improving the advertisements.

- 1) The public is _____ by advertising.
a) surrounded b) betrayed c) attracted
- 2) Large companies often _____ sports events.
a) invent b) go to c) arrange and pay for
- 3) Housewives are _____ by advertisements.
a) very much influenced b) not influenced very much c) influenced less than other people
- 4) Sales and free offers _____ housewives.
a) embarrass b) frighten c) persuade
- 5) Companies say that advertising _____.
a) encourages games b) helps them to be competitive c) allows them to give prizes
- 6) If a mother buys 'Happibaby' _____.
a) she won't suffer b) her baby will be less healthy c) her baby will be healthier
- 7) Advertisements became more scientific _____.
a) a short time ago b) a long time ago c) when television started
- 8) People think scientists _____.
a) can perform miracles b) are well-informed c) understand magic

Advertising is one of the best ways of selling goods. Some people believe E (0) and they couldn't imagine their every-day existence without it. They treat advertising as a service to the community I (1).

However, in reality it has both, advantages and disadvantages. B (2), one can find many of them.

First of all, it makes our life more cheerful. Advertisements often remind us about our childhood or youth. K (3).

Secondly, thanks to posters our streets are much more colourful. It has great influence on young people, especially on teenagers. Colours play a big role in our lives A (4).

What is more, advertising informs people about household goods. G (5), we would not be able to know the differences between each goods. They are our guides while we are doing shopping C (6) which are the best.

ADVERTISING QUOTES

0) Advertising is fundamentally persuasion and persuasion happens to be not a science, but an art.
 – William Bernbach

What is advertising compared to? Art.

1) Young people are threatened ... by the evil use of advertising techniques that stimulate the natural inclination to avoid hard work by promising the immediate satisfaction of every desire. – Pope John Paul II

Why are advertisements harmful to young people?

They stimulate laziness./They could start avoiding hard work.

2) It takes a big idea to attract the attention of consumers and get them to buy your product. Unless your advertising contains a big idea, it will pass like a ship in the night. – David Ogilvy

What is the most important characteristic in an advertisement?

To contain a big idea./To be creative./To be unique.

3) American culture is probably the least Christian culture that we've ever had because it is so materialistic and it's so full of lies. The whole advertising world is just, it's just intertwined with lies, appealing to the worst of the instincts we have. – Eugene H. Peterson

What is the advertising world like? Full of lies.

4) Advertising, music, atmospheres, subliminal messages and films can have an impact on our emotional life, and we cannot control it because we are not even conscious of it. – Tariq Ramadan

Why does advertising have such a big influence on people?

It influences our emotions/emotional life.

5) I believe that life is hard. That we all are going to walk through things that are hard and challenging, and yet advertising wants us to believe that it's all easy. – Jamie Lee Curtis

What does advertising try to convince people to believe?

That it's all easy./That life is easy.

6) There are very few men of genius in advertising agencies. But we need all we can find. Almost without exception they are disagreeable. Don't destroy them. They lay golden eggs. – David Ogilvy

Why are men of genius so important for advertising agencies? (Explain the meaning of the idiom lay golden eggs.) They make profit for their companies.

7) I have been asked what would I ban immediately if I could. Advertising. – Vivienne Westwood

How do we know that Vivienne Westwood doesn't like advertising?

She would ban it.

8) I am one who believes that one of the greatest dangers of advertising is not that of misleading people, but that of boring them to death. – Leo Burnett

What is the greatest danger of advertising, according Leo Burnett?

That they might bore people. / That they are boring.

9) As I see it, fast food outfits have targeted small children with their advertising in a very effective way. You know, it's clowns and kid's toys and bright colors and things like that. – Anthony Bourdain

Who are the target audience of fast food advertisements? Small children.

10) Most advertisers spend millions upon millions of dollars to buy commercial time during the Super Bowl, and millions in creating eye-popping ads, hoping to create catchy, unforgettable commercials. Unfortunately, most Super Bowl commercials end up being unmemorable. Costly mistakes for brands and creative flameouts for advertising firms. – Peter Diamandis

What do advertisers spend money on during the Super Bowl? Commercial time.

We typically think of objects as useful or aesthetic. But objects are of central importance to thought and emotion. E (0).

There are orphaned things in the world – coins, books, fallen leaves – that when you chance upon them feel like winks from the universe. B (1).

I've been travelling since I was a small child and the little things that came my way are always the most memorable. I've returned from Europe with superb bags and scarves, F (2). They're the things I found. Or maybe they found me.

Three smooth stones from Northern Ireland, now huddled like wise men on my desk, prompt similar contemplation. Who knows how old they are, K (3) where I fished them from a sandy pool of water on a summer afternoon at the lip of a cave – bright white reminders that nature endures.

Unlike clothes or jewellery, the value of such souvenirs cannot be understood A (4). A book or coin from your travels is a secret object; only you know its meaning. There's something nice about that.

This is as true today I (5) when people filled curiosity cabinets with tokens from their adventures.

Not all found objects are discovered, though. C (6). Take the airline gate agent who, when I mentioned I was going wine-tasting in Tuscany but had yet to create an itinerary, began scribbling J (7) (which I still have).

On occasion I glance at one of these memorable items and wonder: D (8) What if the little red Shakespeare book, still in pristine condition, was destroyed? Or the coin that winked from a dark sidewalk along the Palais Garnier? H (9) It would be a shame. But having already lived with the book and other tokens for many years, I'm beginning to think it might not matter.

"Souvenir" comes from the French word for "remember." Everything it represents, marks or makes you wonder,

G (10). In this way the ultimate souvenir is not a coin. Or a book. Or even a thing as ancient and everlasting as a stone. It's you.

SHOPPING FOR SOUVENIRS

Last summer, my friend Jess came with my family to Cape Cod. One day, we went to a street with little shops lining both sides. We found a store that specialized in souvenirs. My parents went one way, and Jess and I another, planning to meet at that souvenir shop at noon.

After a productive morning of shopping, Jess and I headed to the souvenir shop. As we walked in, we couldn't help but notice the woman behind the counter glaring at us. She seemed very suspicious. Jess and I exchanged glances, each knowing that the other had picked up on the woman's coldness.

The store was not overly large, but there were so many shelves and tables that the back was not visible from the front. Jess and I ventured to the T-shirts in the back, since her sister had wanted one. The employee immediately walked back and stopped at a display table, pretending to neaten it. Might I add that she was not the best pretender! As we admired one of the shirts, the woman craned her neck because we were touching the shirt.

Jess motioned to me to move to a different area of the store. We wanted to see if she would follow us. As we stopped at the stuffed animals, she stood at the postcard rack. She slowly spun the rack, without touching a single card, her eyes focused on us the entire time. I felt like a criminal, as if I had done something wrong.

Finally, it was noon, and my parents came into the store. As soon as she saw them, the woman sauntered over and asked, "May I help you with anything?" in the sweetest tone imaginable. Her facial expression changed to match her voice, from a look of suspicion to one of welcome.

Jess and I exchanged glances of disgust. Jess spoke before my parents could respond. She looked the woman straight in the eye and said, as politely as she could, "No, I think you've helped us enough."

Once out of the store, my father asked us what had happened. When we explained, they were annoyed with her manner, but very amused by Jess's remark.

Jess ended up buying her sister a T-shirt almost identical to the one we had liked at the store with the mean lady. Of course, at that store we weren't treated like shoplifters.

JUMBLE SALES

Some people hate giving away things such as books and ornaments that they have collected over the years. But there are others who enjoy clearing out their homes and getting rid of what they call rubbish.

Perhaps it is the second group who are responsible for all the jumble sales that seem to be such an important part of the English way of life. And, of course, the first group of people – the hoarders – love going along to the sales to see what bargains they can pick up.

Jumble sales are run by organizations such as the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Youth Clubs and various church groups and clubs to collect money for their particular organizations.

Organizers call round the houses in the neighbourhood to collect whatever each household feels it can do without. In this way they don't have to pay a penny for any of the numerous articles they sell because everything is given to them free of charge. It's a great way of making a 100% profit.

At a typical sale you can buy anything from a pair of scissors to a grand piano and, with luck, you may even find that the first one is cheaper than the second one. Books, clothes, shoes, radios and televisions, carpets, beds, handbags, and all sorts of things are put on display for people to buy.

There is usually a 'White Elephant' stall where you know that whatever you will buy will be of no use to you whatsoever. If a lot of stuff is left over after the sale, it may be stored away for the next sale or even piled together outside to make a bonfire. What a waste!

Keen bargain-hunters start queuing outside long before the doors are open in the hope of coming across a rare 'find'. 'Finds' are not unknown at jumble sales.

A friend of mine picked up a Stradivarius violin for a small sum of money and then found out it was a fake. And another of my friends bought a painting of sunflowers on an ancient canvas. She cleaned off some of the dust and dirt and there was clear yellow paint underneath. It was signed by a very famous painter. I wonder if it's just another White Elephant.

My Granny Rosy was a funny lady. She often talked to herself (0). She was also very strict. I wasn't allowed to go anywhere by myself (1). At the table she used to say: "Jessica, behave yourself (2)." But she was never angry with my brother. He could do a lot of things by himself (3). Sometimes my brother and I went to the forest by ourselves (4) or we stayed at home and played with our parrot. It was great fun when the parrot was looking at itself (5) in the mirror. Our two cats liked to watch themselves (6) in the mirror, too.

In the evening, Granny would read us a story and then she would ask: "Children, did you enjoy yourselves (7)?"

AN AGE OF ADVERTISING

is exposed daily to	are looked upon as magicians	and free gifts	will concentrate on watch commercials	will advertise	where there are advertisements
will immediately become	are influenced by publicity	and to create competition

We live in the age of advertising. In most countries the public is exposed daily to (0) advertisements. From the minute they wake up people are influenced by publicity (1) – in newspapers, on the train, on billboards on the way to work. When they relax after work they watch television, or perhaps go to a football match where there are advertisements (2), or a cricket or tennis match which is organised by a large company.

The housewife is perhaps the most influenced by advertising. While she is shopping she will be attracted by colourful packets, and by signs of reductions and free gifts (3).

Companies say that advertising is necessary to give the public information about their products and to create competition (4). But advertising, which is very expensive, does not only inform. Instead it persuades. A man is persuaded that if he buys 'Old Spice' aftershave lotion, he will immediately become (5) attractive to all the pretty girls. In the same way a mother is persuaded that if she doesn't give her baby 'Happibaby' food, the baby will suffer.

In our technological age science is fashionable and many companies try to make us buy their goods by telling us how important science is in their production.

People feel that scientists know best. They are looked upon as magicians (6) who can perform tricks. For example, before colour television was introduced the white clothes which were being shown in washing powder advertisements were in fact bright yellow. Yellow looked brighter than white on black and white television. Let's hope that scientists will concentrate on (7) improving the products they help to advertise, rather than improving the advertisements.

AUNT ALICE

My Aunt Alice is a real shopaholic (0). Every day, when she empties her letter-box, she first reads all the advertisements (1) for different products in magazines, on fliers and leaflets. At least once a month, she goes on a major shopping expedition (2). She has a big collection of carrier (3) bags, which she wouldn't part with for the world.

Although she makes a shopping list (4), she forgets about it as soon as she sees a special offer (5) – she immediately makes a beeline for it. But most of all she likes shopping for (6) clothes. She spends hours in ladies' wear departments (7) trying on a dress after dress. When she finds the right one, she buys it without even looking once at the price tag (8).

And her wardrobe is full of clothes she hasn't worn even once.
